

What happens when a chunk gets chonk?

We periodically run checks to determine if there are any problem chunks. This is a manual process that is only done by server admins. There is no way as a player to know if your chunk is getting chonky or not.

An admin will reach out to you or an active member of the safehouse in offense via ticket. We'll then coordinate with you to move the things you want out of the area and give guidance on preventing the problem from happening again.

If the area has no ownership tied to it, we will reset the chunk and move on.
