Deadzone between KSSA and Regiment Territories - February 7th, 1997

Mission Briefing

Apollo:

> “
> Survivors, The Regiment has called asking for a favor. They’re asking us to move in and secure a group of manufacturing facilities and rail yard in this area. The plan is to retool these factories for ammo, guns, and medical supplies. So, we’ve deployed into the deadzone somewhere south of Indianapolis. I’m without a doubt that this mission will pay off for all of us in the future. With that said, our mission today will be pretty straight forward. We’re to move in and clear and secure 3 warehouses in the area, followed by a central rail yard.
>
> The Regiment provided some basic intel and I’ve updated all your maps with that. Further, I’ve designated each factory with a letter that will correspond to your squad when you get assigned to one. The rail yard is marked with an R. Once you have your designated factory secure, move with your group to the rail yard, spread out, and make sure everything is secure.

Mission Debriefing

Apollo:

> “ Another successful mission.

> The Regiment is extremely pleased, they were able to roll in with a light contingent and clear out any remaining zeds and have started working to change the factories over (retool) to produce guns, ammo, and medical supplies. They've promised us a small shipment every week. Of which, the KSSA will make available for sale. We will provide more details on this soon as we start to spin up a shop and get everything in order.
>
> Further, the find of necessary supplies to add into the KSSA Transit Project was a huge boon! We were able to get those counted and added into the main sum off materials.
>
> Thank you everyone for your hard work!
