St Memphis Border Area - November 15, 1996

Mission Briefing

Calamari:

> Survivors, We have a major problem. Apollo and White are missing in action. They radioed stating that they were on their way back, but they missed the check in at this station. They were picking up a group of engineers and escorting them back to install the turbine and operate the power station. We’re mounting an immediate rescue mission, saddle up. I’ve scouted ahead a bit, and the bridge to the south has been blown, but looking at old road maps of this area, we should be able to go west, then south, then back east into a small town. We’ll want to make our way to the south side of town to see if we can pick up Apollo’s trail. Stay on your guard everyone!

Mission Debrief

Apollo:

> Thank you all for coming to escort Engineer Greg and myself back to the area here. Unfortunately, a few of the engineers died in the initial ambush, but with our prior experience and Greg's help, we were able to install and maintain the power plant for now. The tanker left there was a huge boon and we'll be distributing that gas shortly.
